Black Ski's Outlook for 2013 - Great Events, Community Outreach and Engagement

We are embarking on our 41st year of greatness in 2013! Throughout my membership in Black Ski I have heard about the many great outreach activities and non-ski/board events that our club has lead or participated in. With this in mind in 2012 we reintroduced social meetings providing a social atmosphere where we've shared information about trips and upcoming events and partook of great food, libations and fellowship. In case you missed our Christmas Party, it was a great night of wonderful food, dancing and fun. We also brought back our Monthly Happy Hours that went on for many, many years where we've danced, eaten and toasted to future great times - please join us at Carolina Kitchen in Hyattsville, MD on January 16th for this month's happy hour. In April, we will have our Aprés Ski Party. May will take us back to Lot 1 in Rock Creek Park for our annual Black Ski Memorial Day Weekend Cook Out. And Tickets will be available for July's Annual Crabfeast at our February General Body Meeting. And last but not least we will have many opportunities for club members to engage in community outreach and volunteering reminiscent of the days when we participated in Project Harvest and other great events throughout the Washington DC area.

Did you know: January is National Learn to Ski & Snowboard Month. Ski areas and resorts throughout the country are celebrating with special offers to get children and adults out on the snow and taking lessons from a professional instructor. Take the "Bring a Friend Challenge" by inviting and helping enroll at least one newcomer to a beginner lesson or lesson package provided by a professional instructor. Sign up for the challenge at www.bringafriend.org. You can win prizes from Challenge sponsors for helping to enroll newcomers even if you are one yourself. You can enter more than once by introducing several different newcomers. The website www.skiandsnowboardmonth.org provides a listing of states with locations where learning programs are taking place. The site helps those new to snow sports with practical information on getting started and also includes tips for those who want to improve. Sign someone up TODAY!

Avalanche Safety

Recent extremely heavy snow falls throughout Colorado and California have increased the risk of avalanches this ski season. Christmas Eve, a Lake Tahoe area avalanche claimed two lives including that of a ski patrol and another at Aspen Snowmass on December 30th and we are still very early in the ski season. In light of this ongoing risk now is a great time to begin thinking avalanche safety and doing all that we can to avoid them. Below is a brief primer on avalanche safety meant to point you in the direction of learning more, seeking out training and getting the right gear especially if you are a fan of skiing and boarding backcountry and unpatrolled areas.

To Avoid an Avalanche, Learn How to Read the Terrain Slope steepness - Slopes of 30-45 degrees are the ones most likely to avalanche, but anything in the neighborhood of 25-60 degrees can do so under certain conditions.

Slope profile - Convex slopes are clearly the most dangerous; stay away from them when you can, especially during the period from late December thru January. Concave slopes are less dangerous, but they can - and sometimes do - avalanche.

Slope aspect - North-facing slopes are the most likely to avalanche during the dreaded middle of winter. But southfacing slopes can become dangerous in the spring and during sunny days, as the sun begins to rise higher in the sky.

Also, slopes that garner snow during windy conditions are dangerous because wind-borne snow adds to their rapid accumulation; the hard, hollow-sounding wind slab may develop there. However windward slopes (those slopes sitting into the wind) generally have less snow and benefit from wind compaction.

Ground cover - Areas with large rocks, trees and heavy brush here and there are a good help in anchoring the snow on the mountain. Smooth, grassy slopes are much more dangerous.

Gearing Up

Things go wrong and sometimes despite precautions we can get caught in an avalanche. And that's why we should always carry the right gear AND know to use it.

Always carry a beacon, a shovel, and a probe pole. Seriously consider wearing a helmet (nearly 30% of avalanche fatalities are caused by trauma) and wearing an Avalung (you can breathe up to one hour if you are completely buried). Wear releasable bindings...if your skis or snowboard stay on in an avalanche its just like jumping into a lake with them on...you are much more apt to get pulled to the bottom.

Avalanche Rescue

If you are caught...

- Try to ski or board off the slab by maintaining momentum and angling to edge of slide.
- Simultaneously, if you are wearing an Avalung, get it in your mouth
- If you get knocked down and you have an Air Bag System deploy it.

- Discard poles (never ski in the backcountry with your pole straps on).
- Hopefully you have releasable bindings and your skis or board come off; if they do, roll on to your back with your feet downhill. Swim hard up stream to try to get to the rear of the avalanche.
- Dig into the bed surface to slow you down and let as much debris as possible go past.
- Grab a tree if you can
- FIGHT!
- As the avalanche slows, try to thrust your hand or some part of your body above the surface and then stick a hand in front of your face to make an air space around your mouth
- If completely buried, try to remain calm hopefully your partners have practiced rescue techniques and they will quickly find you.

If your partner gets buried, you don't have time to go for help! You must save your partner...if you go for help it will be too late!

- Yell to alert your partners and other people that may be in the area. Watch the victim! Memorize the last seen point.
- Make sure it is safe to search. Don't become a victim yourself.
- Designate a leader and quickly develop a search plan.
- Look for surface clues like gloves, boots, and other equipment.
- Conduct a beacon search. Get close and probe BEFORE you dig.

FACT: Many buried victims die of asphyxiation within 10 minutes unless they are wearing an Avalung.

It is critical to attend an avalanche class to learn how to carry out a fast and effective rescue.

And then to frequently practice using your beacon and practice carrying out a rescue before you're faced with the real thing!

Rescues can be chaotic scary affairs; it may be getting dark, it may be cold, it may be stormy. Be prepared. Be ready! Know what you are doing!

YouthFest 2013 March 8 – 10, 2013

The following is some general information regarding the 2013 YouthFest Clinic that will be held March 8, 9 & 10th at Pats Peak Ski Area in Henniker Vermont. Other than hosting the event a week later (by popular demand from NBS Clubs) to avoid conflicts with those that want to attend the NBS summit, most of the details remain unchanged from last years event.

Now in its fourth year, YouthFest Camp, sponsored by the Boston Ski Party, is an opportunity for youth to develop their skills in racing and skiing. The camp will include Race Training with experienced race coaches, beginner, intermediate and advanced training runs on the mountain. As in the past, members of the U.S. Race team may also assist with training more experienced racers. There will also be a range of fun youth and family oriented events both on the hill and back at our hotel. The exposure that some of the regions top racers have gotten at this event has resulted in scholarships and other high level race opportunities for our young NBS racers.

LETS KEEP SHOWCASING OUR YOUNG STARS!!!

This year's event will likely be our largest. Space will be limited and registration may close earlier than in the past. If you are interested you must register early. Please remember that this is a gate training clinic camp designed for experienced beginner, intermediate and advanced skiers. It is not a learn to ski program. While early beginners (youth and parents) are welcome, they will be required to take group lessons at there own expense as necessary. They can still register and participate in all other YouthFest activities. We expect to have approximately 60 racers from Boston and other NBS clubs.

The Camp begins the morning of Friday March 8th. If you cannot make Friday, you will still be able to participate Saturday and Sunday.

To participate, all participants must register and pay the $50 registration fee before January 18th. After that date you will be charged a late fee. The cost of lift tickets for 3 days is approximately $70 and for two days $60. These tickets include a "Step up to POP Night Ticket on Saturday evening. This includes the costs of tubing as well. PLEASE NOTE: COURTESY OF ONE OF OUR SPONSORS, WE HAVE AN EXCITING EARLY REGISTRATION/SKIING DISCOUNT: IF YOU REGISTER BY JANUARY 18th (NO EXCEPTIONS), WE WILL PURCHASE YOUR LIFT TICKETS!!! That's right – FREE SKIING!

REGISTER EARLY TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THIS INCENTIVE (NO EXCEPTIONS).

Hotel accommodations at the Hampton Inn, Concord/Bow must be made ASAP for each night (available each night, Thursday through Saturday). While we have a room block (Boston Ski Party YouthFest), they will sell out so book your reservation now!!! When making your reservation, tell them you are with the Boston Ski Party YouthFest Group.
