Rebuilding Together, formerly Christmas in April, of Washington, DC is a 501(c) (3) tax-exempt non-profit organization. Known in the community since 1983 as Christmas in April of Washington, DC, we underwent a name change in 2001. Although the name changed, we are the same group with the same mission: to assist low-income elderly and disabled homeowners and families with children to continue living in their own homes when they cannot make critical home repairs or accessibility improvements. Additionally, we repair some nonprofit facilities and public schools.

Rebuilding Together of Washington, DC helps those in need through the practice of “neighbors helping neighbors.” In the years since the program began, hundreds of volunteer groups have come forward to repair over 2,500 homes and nonprofits in the District of Columbia, helping to raise the spirits of elderly and disabled homeowners and improving their own team spirit. During the last weekend of April each year, more than 3,000 volunteers fan out across the city to make repairs at approximately 100 project sites. The numbers of volunteers who participate and the popularity of the program increases each year.

Most of the work on project sites occurs on weekends throughout April, culminating on Rebuilding Day, a big blitz-like effort during the last weekend of the month. However, if sponsors prefer, groups can work on a special project at another time of the year (see “Custom” Community Service Days).
